New sizes added to Hörmann RenoMatic promotional door

Hörmann UK have announced that they have added an extra thirteen sizes to their range of RenoMatic Sectional Garage Doors, making this special promotional door even more versatile and providing additional sales opportunities. Offering a combination of a high quality Hörmann LPU 42 sectional door and Pro Matic operator at an attractive price point, RenoMatic is supplied in a range of colours and surface finishes to satisfy even the most discerning customer.

RenoMatic doors are now available in thirty-six standard sizes – up to a maximum height of 2250mm and a maximum width of 5500mm. The doors can be supplied as either M-ribbed or L-ribbed versions and feature three surface finishes: Woodgrain, textured Slategrain and the modern, smooth matt Planar finish. Colour options include on-trend choices such as Jet black, Anthracite metallic and White aluminium.

The range is also available with Secured by Design accreditation as standard, making it one of the most secure garage doors available on the market.

David O'Mara, Marketing Manager at Hörmann UK comments, "The new sizes have been added to the RenoMatic range in response to growing demand and as requests for additional standard sizes have increased. There is no doubt that there is a requirement for a promotional sectional door in cases where margins are being squeezed and RenoMatic is ideally positioned to meet that need.

At Hörmann we listen to the market and are able to quickly respond with products and offers that never compromise on quality or operational integrity, with the RenoMatic range being an excellent example."

The RenoMatic promotional package offers installers exceptional value for money with the opportunity to purchase a single sectional door and operator from only £1703 and the double door option from just £2145 (excluding VAT and fitting).

An updated brochure and price list are available from Hörmann.
